MEMORANDUM

The Court received proposals from two competing slates to serve as lead counsel for the Plaintiffs in this litigation. The “Remele/Sieben Group” consists of Lewis A. Remele, Jr., William R. Sieben, Robert K. Shelquist, Richard M. Paul III, and Francisco Guerra IV. The “Johnson/Gustafson Group” consists of Michael K. Johnson, Daniel E. Gustafson, Martin J. Phipps, Charles S. Zimmerman, Tyler W. Hudson, Garrett D. Blachfield, Paul Byrd, Clayton A. Clark, Will Kemp, Adam J. Levitt, W. Daniel Miles III, Ronald E. Osman, James J. Pizzirusso, Adam Pulaski, Richard W. Schulte, Jason J. Thompson, and Aimee Wagstaff.

The Court reviewed all of the submitted materials and heard oral presentations by the interested parties at the July 31, 2015 hearing. See Manual for Complex Litigation, Fourth, §10.22. The Court must appoint counsel to leading roles that are qualified and responsible, that will fairly and adequately represent all of the parties on their side, and that will keep their charges reasonable. Id. In turn, the designated attorneys assume a responsibility to the court and an obligation to act fairly, efficiently, and economically in the interests of all parties and parties’ counsel. Id. The Court’s appointment of leadership counsel reflects a consideration of the factors set forth in section 10.224 of the Manual. Several attorneys made impassioned presentations at the hearing that they represent and owe a duty to their individual farmer clients. The Court will make decisions on the issue at hand and throughout this litigation in the best interests of the Plaintiffs and Defendants; not those of their attorneys.

As the Court has noted before, it intends to coordinate and cooperate with the Honorable John W. Lungstrum in the United States District Court for the District of Kansas and the companion federal court MDL No. 2591 pending before him. The Court, however, recognizes the differences in size, types of parties, nature of the claims, and forum procedures between the two matters. The Court gives deference to Judge Lungstrum, but will exercise its independent judgment on all matters arising in this litigation. In the January 22, 2015 Order Concerning Appointment of Counsel, Judge Lungstrum rejected a dual leadership team and the creation of an “All-Star team” based on the opinion that both options would result in a team that would not function cohesively. In this instance, the Court will respectively diverge from Judge Lungstrum and appoint attorneys for leadership positions from competing slates.

The Court found the written proposals and oral presentations by both groups persuasive. The qualifications of both slates and the individual attorneys are impressive. The Court has no doubt that all of the proposed attorneys would perform well in a leadership role. The Court finds all of the proposed counsel competent for assignments. In addition, the attorneys’ resources, commitment, and qualifications to accomplish any assigned tasks are more than adequate. There are only a few differences between the slates that had a bearing on the Court’s decision.

The Court cannot ignore the fact that the Remele/Sieben Group represents approximately 92% of the cases currently involved in this litigation. Attorneys appointed to leadership roles have an obligation to act on behalf of and in the interests of all parties and parties’ counsel. Id., § 10.22. As several attorneys noted at the hearing, individual clients will be represented by attorneys that they did not initially choose. While not determinative, this factor weighs in favor of attorneys on the Remele/Sieben Group that represent a significant majority of the Plaintiffs involved in this litigation to date.

The Remele/Sieben Group has entered into a Joint Prosecution Agreement (“JPA”) with the MDL leadership team. The MDL Co-Lead Counsel also submitted a statement in support of the Remele/Sieben Group. The Court considers an attorney’s ability to work cooperatively and recognizes that some individuals may “have generated personal antagonisms during prior proceedings that will undermine his or her effectiveness in the present case.” Id., at § 10.224. It appears from the submissions that based on prior interactions in the MDL, there may be some individual attorneys in the Johnson/Gustafson Group that may have difficulty cooperating and coordinating with other attorneys.

The parties’ characterizations of the JPA are quite divergent. The Remele/Sieben Group views the JPA as evidence of their commitment and ability to work well with the MDL team, which will reduce duplication and promote efficiency. The Johnson/Gustafson Group argues that the JPA causes the attorneys to lose their independence and compromises their ability to represent Minnesota interests. The Court agrees that the leadership team in this matter will need to find a balance between coordinating with the MDL and prosecuting the claims based on the individual circumstances of this litigation. The JPA, however, does not compromise the lawyers’ ability to maintain this balance. In the final analysis, while members of the Remele/Sieben Group have executed the JPA, the Court is not subject to or bound by the terms of the JPA.¹

The issue of trial dates was a consideration discussed by the competing slates in the presentation for leadership roles. Pursuant to the JPA, the Remele/Sieben Group has agreed that it will not seek a trial setting before March 31, 2017, and that the initial MDL bellwether trial will occur before the trial of any claim in this matter. The Johnson/Gustafson Group argues that holding fast to a speedy trial date in this matter is critical to settlement. The Court will control its own schedule. The Court is not obligated to follow the scheduling mandates of the JPA or the MDL. The Court will schedule bellwether cases for trial as appropriate.

Finally, the Johnson/Gustafson Group is offering a lower common benefit assessment. The Remele/Sieben Group proposes a common benefit assessment of 8% (fees) and 3% (expenses), which is consistent with the assessments approved by Judge Lungstrum in the MDL. The Johnson/Gustafson Group proposes a common benefit assessment of 3% (fees) and 1% (expenses). The Court considers whether the arrangements for compensation are clear, satisfactory, fair and reasonable. Id. at § 10.224. The lower assessment means the Plaintiffs would see a greater percentage of a settlement or verdict award. However, the overall savings may not be significant if the Johnson/Gustafson Group is unable to cooperate and coordinate with the MDL resulting in duplicative work. Furthermore, the risks undertaken by counsel for producer and non-producer plaintiffs and for plaintiff classes are quite substantial, especially given the possible obstacles to their success.

Based on all of these factors and considerations, the Court selects the Remele/Sieben Group with some modifications and additions. The proposal for leadership submitted by the Remele/Sieben Group is too narrowly drawn. The Court believes that the Plaintiffs will benefit by spreading the duties, responsibilities, and wisdom among more attorneys. The Court has thus made some adjustments to the Remele/Sieben Group proposal. Daniel Gustafson will be added as Co-Lead Interim Class Counsel. Mr. Sieben is an excellent trial lawyer but his class action experience is limited. On the other hand, Mr. Gustafson has extensive class action experience that will be an asset to the class action plaintiffs. The Court was impressed by Mr. Gustafson's presentation, despite the Court's selection of, primarily, the opposing slate. Mr. Sieben and Mr. Gustafson will make a perfect team representing plaintiff classes. The Court believes that coordination between this matter and the MDL will be furthered by appointing Robert Shelquist as Liaison Counsel. Finally, the Court is also adding Daniel Gustafson, Will Kemp, Clayton Clark, Tyler Hudson, and Paul Byrd to the Plaintiffs' Executive Committee for the reasons stated above. The Court expects all counsel to work together cooperatively for the ultimate benefit of their clients in accordance with the Minnesota Rules of Professional Conduct.
