

Craig S. Davis

Craig Davis practices in the firm's complex litigation and class action group. He has worked on lawsuits about business, including antitrust, consumer or product liability, and personal injury. His antitrust and product liability work focuses on representing buyers in class actions and other complex litigation with businesses or cartels that have manufactured defective products or disrupted buyers' markets or supply chains.

Craig has written on antitrust law, has presented on antitrust law, contracts and warranties, and has recently chaired the Minnesota State Bar Association's Antitrust Law Section.
